NAUTICAL NOTES.

Items of Interest Along the Water Front—General Marine News.

The steamer Lakme is overdue from Portland.

The steamer Geo. W. Elder is due here this evening on her way to Alaska.

The steamer Vancouver came in from Burrard Inlet this morning with a scow load of cedar bolts for shingles.

The British ship City of Athens, Captain Morrison, has arrived at Frisco, 63 days from Newcastle, N. S. W., with 1746 tons of coal on board. She experienced a heavy gale six days after leaving Newcastle, but otherwise the voyage was uneventful.

A new steamer named the Bailey Gatzert, has been built by T. T. Holland of Tacoma, to run between Seattle and Tacoma and is to be used to carry passengers only. Her contract calls for a speed of 22 miles an hour and her projector thinks she will beat even this. On her trial trip she will cover the distance between Seattle and Tacoma in an hour and ten minutes. It takes the Olympian two hours.

The fastest clipper ever built in the United States was the Flying Cloud, which was built by Donald McKay at East Boston. She entered this port on September 1, 1851, after a passage of 89 days from New York. On the passage her average sailing for four weeks was 227 and two-fifths nautical miles daily; the least was 93 miles and the greatest 374 miles. The latter distance was equal to 433¼ statute miles or 18 statute miles an hour for twenty-four hours.

A despatch from 'Frisco says the steamer Danube, chartered by the Canadian Pacific Railway to convey the cargo of the steamer Abyssinia from Yokohama, arrived down to this port, docked at the Vancouver Dock Company's wharf yesterday morning from Ocean. In an interview with one of the officers it was learned that the Danube will in future make regular trips between Victoria, Vancouver, B. C., and Portland, carrying freight bound by the Canadian Pacific steamers to Vancouver.

AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

PORTLAND GIRLS LURED BY A VICTORIAN PROCURESS.

A Jury Disagrees and Saves a Brute's Life—Ghoulist Thieves—A Woman Sentenced for Brutally Murdering her Husband—Secretary Tracy's views on the Navy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—The passengers of the stranded steamship Dania were taken off and brought to the city by the steamship Augusta Victoria. The Dania lies in a precarious position.

Lucky for the Fighter.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—In the case of Frank Larue, on trial for murder for killing Harry McBride in a prize fight at the Golden Gate club on June 6, last, the jury to-night disagreed and were discharged. The jury stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction of manslaughter.

Ghoulish Thieves.

QUINCY, Mass, Aug. 22.—It appears from the statements of passengers on the wrecked Old Colony train that pick pockets worked with great success and reaped quite a harvest. Several of the dead were known to have had money and watches, but these were not found on their persons.

Twelve persons are now at Quincy hospital. They are all seriously injured. Most of them were scalded by escaping steam, and several are in a precarious condition.

John Must Return.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug 22.—The treasury department to-day received a despatch from the collector of customs at San Francisco, stating that six Chinamen had been arrested at Nogalis, Arizona, for illegally entering the United States. The department has instructed the collector to ascertain the facts and if they are illegally in the United States to despatch them by next steamer for China.

To Winter in the North.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—Word is received in this city that Turner and McGrath, the parties engaged in fixing the boundary between British Columbia and Alaska on the 141 meridian, will winter on the Yukon river. This determination, though rather unexpected, has the indorsement of the government. Department officers here have received orders to forward the necessary supplies.

He Tells Two Stories.

TACOMA, Aug. 22.—J. G. Corbin, who was robbed of $1,800 at Slaughter is in town. According to his story he was buncoed by two men, one representing himself to be a wealthy physician in search of land, and the other an agent for a card advertising scheme, the exclusive county right, to which he proposed to sell Corbin and the alleged physician, who thought the scheme a good one and suggested to Corbin that they go into it together.

The old man fell into the trap and complied with the suggestion that he deposit $1,800, his portion of the purchase price, in a designated safe at Slaughter, subject to the conclusion of the deal. Becoming suspicious that something was wrong, he had the safe opened, but found no money. The swindlers had hired a team at Slaughter and driven to Puyallup, where all trace of them was lost.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

The Story of a Fiendish Crime Committed by a Woman.

WHEELING, Aug. 22.—The trial of Mrs. Jacob Morgan in Tyler county has ended in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The woman has been sentenced to the penitentiary for life. It is the first case in the history of the state of a woman being given that punishment. The murdered man was a cousin of Jno. Morgan, the celebrated confederate raider and cavalry commander and the crime was cold blooded.

The woman's husband has been absent from home since the date of the murder, May 8th, 1888, and on his return on Saturday for supper not knowing the food was poisoned. While eating his wife went behind and shot Morgan. He fell over, and his wife cut his throat with a butcher knife. She then ran to a neighbor's house and said a stranger came to the house and asked for supper and had shot her husband. She immediately fled, and she declared that another stranger entered the house and cut her husband's throat. The state succeeded in fixing the crime on Mrs. Morgan. A woman testified that she had said four or five times befor the murder that her husband had been dead for six days. Another woman called at the house while table was being set and was about to drink a cup of tea when Mrs. Morgan took it from her. She was shown a rifle in the house loaded the day before the murder and empty after the crime had been committed. While in jail Mrs. Morgan was heard talking to herself, saying "I laid the plot and fixed him.

AN AMERICAN NAVY.

Secretary Tracy Urges the Necessity of a Powerful Fleet.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 22.—Secretary Tracy in an interview to-day emphatically announced that it was absolutely necessary to protect our coasts by means of naval vessels. He was asked, "What special kind of vessels do you advocate?" "That depends entirely upon circumstances. We should have heavily armored battle ships, such as we now have under construction, able to cope with the latest foreign inventions, and we should have a fleet of armored cruisers to prey upon foreign commerce and for coast and harbor defence. I approve of a modified form of original Ericsson monitors. The expense of such a navy as compared with an elaborate system of shore defence would be far less. Take San Francisco, for instance. It is impossible to protect such a port by a system of shore batteries. New York and Boston is no better, even if we could mount and maintain heavy enough guns to keep an enemy at a respectable distance from our centres of wealth, without a naval force a foreign fleet could completely blockade our principal ports of entry, and simply by keeping out of harm's way paralize our shipping trade. I believe in harbor defences. In many harbors they may be used with great effect in conjunction with a naval force; but harbor defences should be made subsidiary to the navy, which should at least be sufficient to watch and harass hostile fleets."

A WRECKED SEALER.

The Mary Ellen Runs on the Rocks and is Badly Broken.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—By the arrival of the schooner John Hancock from Alaska details were received of a serious accident which happened to the well known sealing schooner Mary Ellen. She was owned by Mr. Morris Moss of Victoria, and was commanded by Captain Dan McLean. She was fitted out here some time ago by Liebes of the North American Commercial Company, and sent to Alaska on a sealing expedition. She fared well during the trip and the last news received from the sealers credited her with a catch of over 1000 skins.

The version of the disaster as given by several members of the crew, is that after making a successful catch, the Mary Ellen sailed for Unga Island, which is located a few miles beyond Sand Point. In attempting to make the Island the schooner ran on some rocks and it was instantly seen that her keel had been split in several pieces, and a big hole appeared in her starboard side. These damages, though not extreme, were yet bad enough to make the vessel absolutely worthless. There were no conveniences on the island for effecting repairs, and help could not be procured. In his plight Captain McLean thought it best to sell her for what she would bring. She was purchased by Captain O'Brien of Sand Point for $600. O'Brien managed after considerable difficulty to get her off the rocks, and she was subsequently taken to Sand Point where she was repaired well enough to let her go on another sealing cruise. A crew was obtained and she set sail again on a sealing expedition to Prybiloff Island. Capt. McLean came down to this city on the John Hancock.

UBIQUITOUS JOHN BULL.

The American Transcontinental Companies Object to Him.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A Washington special to the Herald says: There is something in that refusal of the treasury department to permit the shipment of cartridges across the United States to Mexico in bond. The Canadians thought that it showed a disposition to limit the bonding privilege hereafter, possibly as a reprisal for the Dominion's doings in Behrings sea and other matters, and they are right. Treasury officials here are diplomatically ignorant of any such intention, but their ignorance is not important. In Secretary Windom's absence they could not be expected to know anything of the situation. As I gather it is that the secretary of the treasury is under great pressure to reverse the policy of the department in years past, and not only to refuse to extend the transhipment in bond privilege, but to deny where it has been heretofore granted. Secretary Windom's recent report to congress, while evading some of the inquiries made, did point out that the Canadian Pacific might easily be brought to book. This road is, in fact, the main point of attack. Transcontinental companies are complaining bitterly that the overland and Asiatic business is being built up at their expense, because of special facilities given it by the United States, and that British carrying companies are thus enabled to drive from the ocean American commerce which should have its terminal at San Francisco. They are evading the "flag cry", and insisting that the Union Jack must not be given trade advantages at the expense of the stars and stripes. The law adviser of the treasury department is an advocate of measures, and I suspect that it was his legal opinion which kept the cartridge company from getting a permit for shipping its goods across the United States to Mexico. The talk about retaliatory measures for Behring sea poaching is made the text for the treasury's unfriendliness of attitude and it looks as though the Canadian Pacific was closer to the discriminating policy on the part of this country than it has been for years. The treasury officials emphatically deny that bonding privileges have been in any way discontinued up to this time, but at the same time the department is not extending them beyond its present scope, which is substantially what the Montreal Cartridge Co. seems to have desired, and according to their president to have requested. At present they could enter their goods at the Canadian frontier and ship them to New York under warehouse bond, then withdraw from the warehouse for transportation and exportation to Mexico; but the Canadian company wish to avoid this trouble and suggested that they be allowed the privileges accorded goods arriving at the seaboard for their trans-shipment to Mexico. This the treasury department did not feel it could grant. This is all the foundation there is for the claim that the bonding privileges of Canadians are being curtailed.

LURING GIRLS TO RUIN.

Victoria Procuress Captured in Portland With Two Victims.

PORTLAND, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Raymond, who keeps a house of questionable character in Victoria, B. C., was arrested here to-day when about to board a Northern Pacific train in company with Annie McGee and Mary Wright, two girls about 17 years of age, whom it is alleged she had induced to lead a life of shame in her house. Mrs. Raymond was locked up in jail, and will have a hearing to-morrow.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC IN SPAIN STILL RAGING.

Chauncy Depew Called Home—An Imaginary Ghost Causes a Stampede in a German School—Emin Pasha Complains of Stanley—Cruel Treatment of Troops.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—It is reported that Depew has been called home from Hamburg on account of the strike.

A Barbarous Officer.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—There is intense excitement here over the conduct of Col. Schoeller, commanding the 9th regiment of infantry who yesterday compelled his men to march from Wurzburg to Market Breit, with the mercury at 91 degrees. The men were in heavy marching order, full field equipment, winter overcoats and tents. Before Market Breit was reached, a distance of 30 kilometers, 400 were compelled to leave the ranks. Of those now undergoing treatment 50 are thought to be in a dangerous condition.

A Hysterical Panic.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—A panic occurred to-day in a large public school in Friedenstrasse. It seems the children were possessed of the idea that the schoolhouse was haunted by the spirit of a former teacher who suicided many years ago. At noon a girl in the first class became hysterical, and ran into the main hall crying that the ghost was choking her. The pupils rushed from their classes, catching frantically at their throats, and yelling that the ghost was attacking them. The teachers were powerless to restrain the scared children, and the staircases were soon strewn with them toppling over each other. Fortunately the exits were ample, and all reached the outside with slight injuries. The school building is being watched by police in order to find out the cause of the fright.

A Mediator Dispatched.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 22.—General of Division Ignacio Balatorre has been appointed by President Diaz as special minister to Central America, resident in Guatemala, with confidential instructions to act as mediator in affairs between Salvador and Guatemala. He has just left San Francisco en route to his post.

The Cholera Epidemic.

MADRID, Aug. 22.—The government physicians have announced their refusal to serve longer in the cholera infected districts unless given a strong military escort. The declare that the peasants oppose all attempts to institute sanitary precautions and prevent them from doing duty, and that under the circumstances an abatement of the disease is quite impossible. A village has been deserted by all its inhabitants only those down with cholera and a few relatives who refuse to desert them are left. The mayor, who is the only remaining official in the city, buried his own son. All the grave diggers have fled, and of 123 people who have been attacked by the disease 44 died during the last four days.

Emin and Stanley.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Emin Pasha, writing to a friend in Germany, bitterly renews his attack upon Stanley, and reiterates his former complaints against that explorer.

Cyclone in Switzerland.

GENEVA, Aug. 21.—It is reported that no persons were killed by a cyclone in the Canton on Varid.

Canadian Appointments.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 20.—At a meeting of the Quebec cabinet yesterday, Robidoux was appointed attorney-general; Langelier, provincial secretary and Trucott, plenipotentiary.

SALVADOR-GUATEMALA.

The Order of Procedure Reversed—The Vanquished Dictating Terms.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A special to the Herald says: The San Salvador propositions for peace made by the diplomatic corps to provisional President Ezta, learned to day, imply the abandonment of the autonomy of the independence of Salvador. It is affirmed here that these propositions were suggested by President Barrillas of Guatemala. Naturally there is much displeasure manifested in political circles. Hostilities which have been suspended up to this time are liable to be resumed at any time. President Ezta has declared he will not submit to the dictation of President Barrillas, and it is currently reported that he had definitely decided to reject the proposed treaty. I asked President Ezta to give me an idea of the demands made by President Barrillas, and he said that the protocol submitted by Guatemala demanded that Vice-President Ayala should assume the executive power, and arrange for the election of a president. President Ezta replied that the proposal to place the late vice-president, Dr. Ayala, in the presidential chair is a preposterous one on the very face of it. Not that I would care if any other man who pleased the people of Salvador should replace me as president of the republic; but Vice-President Ayala is a traitor to his country and is recognized as such by his compatriots for having allied himself to the Honduras troops in order to attack his fellow countrymen on his native soil. I most strenuously object to having any conditions imposed upon me, and I cannot believe that Dr. Galindo, the Salvadorian representative at Guatemala, was fully consulted or such a protocol would never have been presented to me for my signature. It is like signing my own death warrant and that of the people of Salvador. I shall reject the protocol in toto.

A prominent official connected with Ezta's Government said to me to-day that it was thought here that President Ezta had not been fairly treated by the diplomatic corps and especially by the United States minister. Negotiations for peace should have taken place on the soil of Salvador. As it was Salvador was both the victor and the aggrieved party. It was reversing all international procedure and making the vanquished party dictate terms to the victor.

The Spanish Minister to Central America, Senor Arellano, arrived here to-day from Guatemala, and has been in close conference the whole morning with General Ezta. President Ezta has expressed a desire to await the arrival of General Alatorre, the Mexican Minister to Central America, before attempting to conclude any peace arrangements with Guatemala.

A REPUTED OUTRAGE.

A British Captain Compels a Venezuelan to Lower His Flag.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 22.—The dispute with England over the Guiana boundary continues, and causes much trouble. Venezuelans are indignant over a recent high-handed proceeding of the English in the disputed territory. The British gunboat Ready, from Demerara, with Commander Motruck on board, arrived at Punta Barima towards the close of last month, and ordered the captain of a Venezuelan vessel, the Fara, which was guarding the mouth of the Orinoco, to haul down his colors. This he was compelled to do, submitting to superior force. The government has sent a commission to the spot to investigate the outrage. The commander of the Fara will be tried by court martial for having yielded without making a proper show of resistance. The Liberal of this city suggests that another vessel be sent to Punta Barima with guns shotted and flag nailed to the mast. Let the British do their worst, and Venezuela can appeal to the United States and her sister republics in South America, and to the British parliament itself against such a violation of international law.

ANOTHER MAYBRICK CASE.

Enough Arsenic Found in a Stomach to Kill Ten Men.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 22.—Dr. Ludeking completed a chemical analysis today that points to a terrible crime, that for which Mrs. Maybrick was convicted. After the chemist's report a telegram was sent to Fredericktown to arrest Mrs. Robert Gray for the murder of her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Gray were a young country couple living near Fredericktown. Gray was very wealthy, but wealth did not bring happiness. An old suitor of Mrs. Gray's continued his attentions after marriage. Finally the pair became separated, then became reconciled and lived together again. Grey was taken seriously ill three weeks ago and died in convulsions. His friends suspected something wrong and the stomach was sent to Dr. Ludeking for analysis. He finished his work today and found enough of arsenic in the organ to kill ten men. Mrs. Gray and her former suitor will both be arrested for crime.

SPLENDID CATCHES.

Mr. Ross of Ross & Hewlitt Interviewed in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—Mr. Ross, of the firm of Ross & Hewlitt, of this city, has returned from a prolonged visit to Victoria and other northern points. When seen by a reporter yesterday, he volunteered considerable information regarding the poachers: "A number of wild rumors," he said, "have been circulated in this city and elsewhere about the movements of the sealers up north. Most are not true, and are a tissue of misrepresentations. It was published here that the Bear and Rush had made several seizures of British sealers. This is not so, as while I was in Victoria, I made special inquiries to test the truth of these rumors, and found them untrue. As far as I can ascertain, the sealers have thus far made splendid catches. The published catch amounts to twenty-three thousand skins, but I think it is in excess of that number.

A LIVELY MIDDY

Personates Prince George, and Foo's the Halifax Fête.

A special from Halifax to the Chicago Herald says: Five midshipmen of H. M. S. Thrush will shortly be brought before a court-martial for conduct unbecoming English officers and gentlemen. Their names are Midshipmen Henry Pixley, George Woodlock, W. J. Dawkes, N. N. J. Cargett and Honorable S. W. Pensonley. When Halifax society heard of the visit of Prince George a purse was raised and a magnificent residence fitted up for a royal entertainment. The Thrush arrived, and within an hour a launch appropriately decorated for the occasion was sent to deliver to Prince George an elaborate invitation. The prince declined, and to Midshipman Pixley entrusted the message, declining the invitation. When Pixley reached shore and announced to his four companions the message one of them suggested impersonating the prince. To think was to act. In less time than it takes to write Pixley consented to play the part of prince, and with his companions decided to receive the homage of Her Majesty's liege subjects. Pixley and his companions hurried to the brilliantly lighted and gorgeously decorated residence, where they were immediately surrounded by a bevy of beautiful girls, who went into perfect raptures over the "dear prince's affability." After the banquet the five midshipmen, in the midst of the many toasts which were drank to the Queen, the Prince of Wales and the English navy, quite forgot their dignified bearing and issued promiscuous invitations to come on board the Thrush. The rest of the tale is soon told. One of Pseudo Prince's hosts visited the Thrush on the following day and found Halifax society had been duped. The Prince was informed of the affair, and the result of an investigation which he caused to be made was the arrest of the five midshipmen.

NOT A BAIT FOR ROBBERS.

An Old Railroad Man Tells Why Pay Trains Are Never "Held Up."

"Why is it that train robbers never plunder a pay train?"

"Because they know their reward would be too insignificant."

That is the way an ex-railroad man put it recently.

"Less money," he added, "is carried on a pay train than any other kind of train. Some folks imagine that the pay of the employes of the two great railroads centering in Savannah, hundreds of thousands monthly, is piled away in the cars, and is hauled over the road."

"Isn't that the case?"

"No. The trains would be robbed before they got well out of Savannah. Besides, who would be able to keep up with a car load of money? It is largely silver, and the ten cent pieces and the nickels and the coppers would run away with things."

"How is the business conducted, then?"

"Easily enough. In fact there is but one way to properly carry it on. That way is to draw on the banks at each city for enough to pay off until the next city is reached. For instance, in leaving Savannah over the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad or the Central railroad just enough money is taken to pay employes, including agents, track hands, operators and others at each of the stations. This amount is not very large. The largest amounts are paid out in the cities; for instance, in Macon the engineers, firemen, conductors and yard hands, and others of the Savannah and Western railroad, are paid off; in Augusta the employes of the South Carolina division of the Central are paid off; the same is true with the Savannah, Florida and Western railway. By this means the largest sums paid out amount to a little more than a transfer of money procured from the banks, through the paymaster of the railroads, to the employes. The sums paid out on the line between the headquarters of each division are small compared to the amounts paid out in the cities. None of the engineers or firemen or conductors or brakemen are paid off at points along the line. They are the employes that get the largest pay."

The railroad man related an incident which took place several years ago, which he said put matters in a bad light and made the pay train tempting to train robbers. A newspaper reporter on one of the dailies in a western town wrote a long article, stating how much money it required to pay off the employes of the road, and concluded by saying it was singular that the robbers seldom held up the pay trains. The figures the newspaper man gave were correct, and the article attracted widespread attention. Several officials of the road went to the general manager about the matter, and began to suggest a remedy for what they considered a very bad practice.

The general manager explained to them that the amount of money carried on pay trains was small compared to what is carried on a regular mail and express train, but the matter was not settled until the newspaper man published an interview with the general manager, giving the facts and stating the manner in which the business was conducted on pay trains. The railroader said, however, that the danger of pay train robbery is very slight. The robbers have posted themselves about these matters.—Savannah News.

A Financial Transaction.

A young man who is employed in the office of a leading local architect was greatly chagrined to discover, when he reached home the other night, that the conductor of an Indiana avenue car had foisted upon him a half dollar in which there was a plug half as large as the coin itself. He was primarily disgusted at being made the victim of such a palpable fraud, and he declared his intention of handing it back to the offending conductor, if possible. Accordingly he timed the man's car and boarded it on the following morning. That night he returned home and proudly boasted that his ruse had been successful and that he had handed back the spurious half whence it came. In proof of this he exhibited the change, and among it he was pained to discover a plugged nickel which could not have deceived a blind man. He resolved to give this back to the same conductor, and the next time he boarded his car he so arranged the nickel in his fingers that the plug would not be conspicuous when he handed it over. Just as the conductor approached him, the man sitting at his left said: "Excuse me, sir, but I see you have a nickel there; I have a dime, and if you will give me your nickel I will pay both fares." As there was no visible way out of it, the young man handed the plugged nickel in silence, but he went out on the front platform and froze during the rest of the trip, lest the stranger should discover the plug.—Chicago Herald.

A Mushroom Myth.

It is a popular error that mushrooms grow to their full size during a single night, and that they dissolve and vanish after the sun shines upon them. They are rapid in growth and rapid in decay; but the same mushroom may be watched growing and expanding for two or three days, and then gradually decaying away. Much depends on the dampness or dryness of the season. In some seasons they are exceedingly plentiful, while at other times they are comparatively rare. This also is believed to depend on climatic conditions. It is not unusual for cultivated mushrooms to become attacked by a parasitic mold, which renders them unfit for food. This misfortune rarely happens to the wild form until it is in process of decay. The catacombs of Paris are noted for their production of mushrooms in immense quantities. From the Mery caves as many as 3,000 pounds are sent to market daily.—We have heard of a crop being grown in a hat box.—Pall Mall Budget.

THE SHADOW OF THE STUDIO.

Closed is the studio door,
And none may pass that way;
For the brush unheeded falls,
And the light on the lofty walls
Is cold and gray.

He has brought the flower she loved,
Her own French daffodil;
He has laid it on her breast,
Where she lies today at rest,
So white and still.

Who can tell what he feels,
That 'neath the arches dim
Of some chapel for the dead
Hears sung, when day has fled,

Who knows what the painter feels
As he brings his daffodil,
With aching heart and head,
To the wife of his bosom, wed
To the Wooer chill?

In a chamber of his soul,
Never unlocked till now,
The priestess, Sorrow, stands,
Pain's censer in her hands,
And an iron brow.

His nerves grew sick and faint,
And darkness veils his eyes,
As her incense odors press
To each far away recess
Where feeling lies.

But his love is pale and still,
With her golden daffodil
Clasped to her silent breast.
Does she know his wild unrest,
His shattered will?

Where is her spirit now?
To the shores of her native France
Has it swift recrossed the years?
Does the light of larger spheres
Its joys enhance?

He only knows that he
Henceforth must climb alone
The steep, stern ways of art,
His lips are dumb, his heart
Lies locked in stone.

Closed is the studio door,
And none pass in today;
His brush unheeded falls.
The light on his spirit's walls
Is cold and gray.

Baby Liked Him.

The maxim that there is some good in everybody is constantly receiving fresh illustrations.

A poor little ragamuffin, stepson in a large, thriftless and exceedingly poor family, was an eyesore to the thrifty inhabitants of the decorous, prosperous old village upon which his slatternly household had suddenly descended.

He was always in the streets, and always ragged and dirty, and even if he was set to work was sure to leave his job to follow the first hand organ.

In the course of nature he was arrested for vagrancy. He showed no emotion when the indictment was read, nor when he was sentenced to the reform school, but when the sheriff roughly bade him "brace up," for they had just time enough to catch the train, the boy looked so troubled that his counsel asked him if he wanted anything.

"I'd like to see the baby before I go," he said, wistfully, and with his pale lips quivering.

A few questions to his mother and his stepfather brought out the fact that the waif had a domestic side to his deformed little nature, and that the baby preferred him to all the rest of the family.

His request was granted. The sheriff looked up a later train; a constable "shadowed" the boy home, and he had an hour with his baby brother before beginning his dismal journey.

It is to be hoped that those to whose care he was committed were wise enough to take advantage of the "soft spot" thus unexpectedly revealed in a heart which had seemed so wanting in susceptibility to any good influence.—Youth's Companion.

Characteristics of the Cat.

In constrast with the demonstrative philanthropy of the day consider the example of the cat. The cat has retenue. He has his hours of sportiveness, as Montague observed; "thus freely speaketh Montague about cats," says Izaak Walton. He will not disturb himself at any other moments for anybody. The blandishments of strangers he neither shuns nor seeks—he endures them. He is never bored with his own company. Of all animals he alone attains to the contemplative life. There is no pretense of sympathy about the cat. He lives "alone, aloft, sublime," in a wise passiveness. If you tread on a dog's tail by accident, he utters "the lyric cry," and then dissolves in the elegies of apology. The cat suffers and is silent, or firmly applies his claws with remark. He is excessively proud, and, when he is made the subject of conversation, will cast one glance of scorn and leave the room in which personalities are bandied. He disdains accomplishments, and it is a fact that cats are losing the art of purring. All expressions of emotion he scouts as frivolous and insincere, except, indeed, in the ambrosial night, when, free from the society of mankind, he pours forth his soul in strains of unpremeditated art. — Toronto Globe.

The Good Influence of Woman.

The world is growing better, but it is not due so much to wealth or to business enterprise as to the influence of good mothers and gentle women.

The man of the world has no time to train his children in moral ethics. He may take time to punish them for overt immorality, but it is the mother who plants the seeds in the young hearts and nourishes the growths with gentle care.

Next to the mother ranks the sweetheart. By demanding gentleness, deportment, moral rectitude and refinement in manner, she encourages the development of that which the mother had tenderly watched and nourished. It is natural for man to endeavor to please those he loves; and for the sake of enjoying the smiles and favors of the woman upon whom his affections are centered he will endeavor to rise to her social and moral plane.

Many men are kept out of the gutters by their love and respect for pure, good women.—Pittsburg Gazette.

A novel feature of the coming exhibition in Edinburgh will be a working ship railway in which the vessel will be immersed in water while upon the car.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR.—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned offensive breath, dull, oppressive headache, offensive dropping from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. THE DEAD CARDINAL.

He Passed Peacefully and Painlessly Away to his Reward.

A London despatch says that the scene at the bedside of Cardinal Newman was touching in the extreme. During the entire afternoon the Cardinal's death had been approaching, and his acute attack of pneumonia that was made doubly dangerous by his advanced age, he having reached his 90th year, was increasingly severe.

At the moment of his death there were about him all the fathers and clergy of the diocese and many of the high dignataries of the church, who had come from a distance summoned at the first knowledge of the Cardinal's illness. The Duke of Norfolk was telegraphed for, but owing to an accident was prevented from reaching the Oratory before the Cardinal passed away.

The end was peaceful and almost as though it were the approach of sleep. The Cardinal retained his grand intellectual powers until he became unconscious.

There seems to be no division in the mourning between the Protestants and Catholics over the great loss.

Cardinal Newman was attacked with inflammation of the lungs on Sunday. Monday morning the physicians said his case was hopeless and the end was very near. The Cardinal being unconscious he could not receive the viaticum but he received the Holy Communion on Saturday. He remained sinking and apparently unconscious all Monday, and was visited during the afternoon by the Rev. Edward Isley, Bishop of Birmingham, who offered up a prayer.

Though extremely weak on Sunday afternoon, the Cardinal was conscious, and desired his secretary and chaplain, his constant companion for many years, to repeat his breviary, the Cardinal going through the office himself in a feeble voice. His end was quiet, peaceful, and painless.

To a correspondent who visited the oratory at Edgbaston, near Birmingham, where Cardinal Newman died, a young priest said:

"The Cardinal's death has so taken us by surprise that no plan of arrangements has yet been perfected. The funeral will take place here a week from to-day, and the body will be buried at Redani, a little village seven miles distant, where we have our Oratory retreat. The Cardinal will, by his own wish, be laid beside Father Ambrose St. John, whom he loved so dearly, and whom he addressed in his 'Apologia' in those touching lines, 'And to you, especially, dear Ambrose St. John, whom God gave me when he took everyone else away, who are the link between my old life and my new, who have now for 21 years been so devoted to me so patient so zealous, so tender, who have let me lean so hard upon you, who have watched me so narrowly, who have never thought of yourself if I was in question.' Yes, we were all present when the Cardinal passed away; but there was no death-bed scenes, he being in a comatose state almost from the commencement of the attack."

Dr. Blunt, who attended the Cardinal said: "There was not the slightest hope from the beginning of the attack. The inflammation spread in the Cardinal's right lung with surprising rapidity, advancing six inches in less than that many hours. He had no vitality left to resist it. The body will not be embalmed. No surgeon's knife will ever disfigure those sacred remains. As soon as death was evident the remains were dressed in the Cardinal's grand robes of State."

Describing the removal of the body from the oratory to the adjoining church, the correspondent says:

Down the silent corridor came the fathers of the Oratory, some in surplices, some in sombre cassocks, chanting in mournful tones the solemn Latin words of the Miserere. All the members of the community, 14 in number, were present except the two brothers Bellasis. Directly after them came the purple-shrouded bier, reverently borne by members of the household. Crossing the courtyard, fresh with green trees and bright with the sun now shining, the procession entered the church, and, passing up the center aisle, laid the revered burden on the catafalque, which was ready in front of the chancel. Silently the mourning fathers moved about, each doing his appointed work, one lighting four monster candles, which guarded the remains on either corner, one bringing a mitre, wonderfully wrought in white satin, and fitting it tenderly on the head of the great departed another placing at his feet a small table, on which two candles threw down their light upon the silver bowl filled with holy water, and still another laying the bright red cardinal's hat upon the body. Then short prayers were said and a few psalms read while one of the brothers waved clouds of incense, and a sad-eyed comrade sprinkled the remains with drops from the silver bowl. Then, having knelt in silent prayer, the brothers, signing themselves devoutly, one by one withdrew.

"Never had I looked on a more impressive scene. Before withdrawing I ventured to approach the catafalque and look upon the earthly part of the great orator and theologian. His pallid face stands out in sharp relief against the magnificent background of purple and gold. The cheeks and mouth are sunken, the nose is hooked and very prominent. He is dressed in full pontificals and his breast is hung with jeweled chains and crosses. The hands are gloved in purple, the feet shod with slippers richly embroidered. Now all have withdrawn save a few kneeling priests, and Cardinal Newman sleeps alone in the silent sanctuary, where his silver tongue will be heard no more."

The dinner given at the Archbishop's residence on Tuesday night by His Grace Archbishop O'Brien was a brilliant affair, and the presence of Prince George of Wales was an emphatic contradiction of the sensational reports sent abroad some days ago to the effect that His Royal Highness was at loggerheads with the Catholic portion of the community, and had refused to be the guest of the Archbishop. Besides the Prince, a number of prominent visitors and citizens were present including Gov. Daly, Sir Ambrose Shea, Governor of Bahamas, Gen. Sir John Ross, Senator Power, and Capt. Drury, of the flagship Bellerophon.

You should secure a lot in Fernwood. Beautiful residential property. Enquire of the leading estate agents.

A BY-LAW

Reducing Special Rate Imposed by the Cemetery Loan By-Law, 1890.

A LIBEL SUIT.

The TIMES was this morning served with a writ, in an action for libel, JOSEPH BOWDEN HUGO being the plaintiff. Mr. HUGO who is a miner in the employ of DUNSMUIR & Company at Wellington, claims $5,000 for alleged libel contained in the issue of the TIMES of the 18th and 19th inst. Our readers will remember that HUGO was the complainant in the proceedings taken against five Wellington Union Miners for intimidation, and that the evidence at the examination was pretty fully reported in the TIMES. While we need not discuss the merits of the present suit for libel or comment upon Mr. HUGO's motives in entering the action, we can point out that the policy of coercion which has been pursued with unrelenting severity against the TIMES for the past four years has not been so successful as to justify its continuance. It would be better for our enemies if they were to press to a conclusion some of the actions now pending (there are three of them) rather than that they should continue to add to the number.

SLIGHTLY CONFLICTING.

It is amusing to note the tendency of the Government to shoulder blame on a previous administration whenever they wish to extricate themselves from a disagreeable position. Replying to our strictures re the disallowance of a bill of $5 incurred by the school trustees, the Colonist states that "the payment of school accounts is precisely the same now as it was many years ago. This is a case of the devil quoting Scripture to suit his purpose, and, as in the case of ordering out of troops, the responsibility of the thing is shifted to the shoulders of a subordinate. But the amusing feature of the whole business is, that while the Colonist accuses the TIMES of a "lofty contempt for facts," it has never been known to acknowledge a truth. The $5 was disallowed, the Premier was interviewed about it, and he tore about like a caged hyæna. In the department of the Minister of Education we have pretty good circumstantial evidence of his familiarity with the voucher submitted to the auditor, and the further inference is, that he instructed that functionary to disallow it. That our inferences are safer to follow than the Colonist's direct statements is manifest in the following: Mr. ROBSON does not see or hear of the school accounts except when, as in the instance under consideration, his attention is especially directed to one of them, and it was the School Trustees themselves who brought this one under his notice. Did the trustees call Mr. ROBSON's attention to the $5 liability they had incurred before it was disallowed? We are not to suppose that they did anything of the kind. Finding that the bill had been disallowed they interviewed Mr. ROBSON, and he stormed and raged, which display is pretty good evidence that the information imparted to him by the Trustees was in no slight degree a chestnut. The unavoidable inference is, that by virtue of Mr. ROBSON's display of temper he knew all about the disallowance of the bill, had sanctioned it, in fact, previous to his attention being called to it by the Trustees. Will the Colonist please reconcile the situation with the statement.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

The London Advertiser advocates an experiment in compulsory voting. The suggestion is made that at its first session the Legislature should enact a statute providing for compulsory voting at all bye-elections for the next two or three years. The Advertiser points out that three-fourths of the effort of a campaign is directed to getting out the vote, and argues that the "electors should be educated by law to get out the vote themselves," and that disfranchisement for a term of years should fall upon all voters who fail to go to the polls. "Every honorable candidate," insists our London contemporary, "no matter what his politics, a system of compulsory voting and non-canvassing would lift a burden of useless work, unnecessary expense and a sense of personal degradation in vote-begging well-nigh intolerable."

The experiment might be tried, but as it unfortunately happens that men for good and substantial reasons are not always able to vote, would we not have a remedy that is worse [illegible] every day from the polls for various reasons. One man may be sick, and another have an important trade on hand. Another on election day might want to be absent on his wedding tour. There are a multiplicity of good reasons for absenteeism on election day, and shall men be disfranchised for what they cannot well help? We can conceive that a man had rather be disfranchised than lose a good trade. But the law will be made to provide for these suppositious cases, it will be rejoined? How much better off in the face of such a provision will we be than we are at present? The difference would not be worth mentioning. Theoretically, compulsory voting is all right, but practically there is no such thing as making it workable. If men will not vote of their own free will it is useless to undertake to make them do so. One of the causes which interfere to prevent men from exercising the franchise is that of the rottenness of politics. If Democracy is a failure scoundrelism has made it so.

RELATIVE STRENGTH.

FREDERICK GREENWOOD, formerly editor of the St. James Gazette, has an article in the Contemporary Review for August, in which he undertakes to show that in Africa Lord SALISBURY has yielded to the "blood and iron masterfulness of Germany." "The simple explanation," says Mr. GREENWOOD, of England's timid foreign policy is that her "relative strength has declined." This is putting the case somewhat ambiguously. If multiplicity of irons in the fire is productive of "relative weakness," then England is not as powerful as she was once. On the other hand, if money and men are the main essentials of strength in war, England is relatively stronger than ever before. The grand cause of England's timidity (so called), however, does not lie in any sense of weakness, but in the impression that there is such a thing as expanding beyond the limits of safety. In the past England had everything to gain and little or nothing to lose by extending her possessions. The point of advantageous expansion is now reached, and why add that which is of no especial advantage and which might prove a source of weakness? It is impossible to form a correct estimate of England's strength by comparing her old time foreign policy with that of the present. The motives at the bottom of commercial expansion were the same then as now, but the methods of accomplishment have undergone a transformation. That which was formerly accomplished by powder is now attained by the lowest bidder. England, being able to underbid the world, has no need to flourish bayonets. Are we to assume that this is weakness? The policy of England is to hold that which she has got, and even to relinquish that which is of no special advantage to her. But let some nation attempt to wrest from England the least valuable of her possessions, and it will be discovered, we think, that she will develop something more than relative strength.

DORIAN GRAY.

OSCAR WILDE has reappeared to the world in the shape of a book entitled "Dorian Gray," a book we should suppose not unlike Endymion in point of epigram, but alas in the matter of morals not admitting a parallel. The critics have sat down on the book with some force. The St. James Gazette is especially hard on WILDE; it calls the book a "study in puffydom, dull and nasty," the result of WILDE's craving for notoriety. "The writer," says the Gazette with an acerbity we have seldom seen equalled, "airs his cheap research among the garbage of French decadents like any driveling pedant, and he bores you unmercifully with prosy rigmaroles about the beauty of the body and the corruption of the soul." OSCAR retorts that his "story is an essay on decorative art" and that no "limitations" should be placed on a production of that kind. Addressing himself further to the refutation of his critic, he remarks, "that good people exasperate one's reason; bad people stir one's imagination. The function of an artist is to invent, not to chronicle. The extreme pleasure in literature is to realize the non-existent." But, however wicked the book may be it is not so stupid as the Gazette would have us believe. It contains a number of clever bits and striking passages. Here are some of them.

"Never marry a woman with straw-colored hair, Dorian," he said, after a few puffs. "Why, Harry?" Because they are so sentimental." "But I like sentimental people." "Never marry at all, Dorian. Men marry because they are tired; women, because they are curious; both are disappointed."

When one is in love, one always begins by deceiving one's self, and one always ends by deceiving others. That is what the world calls romance.

Those who are faithful know only the pleasures of love. It is the faithless who know love's tragedies.

When we blame ourselves, we feel that no one else has a right to blame us. It is the confession, not the priest, that gives us absolution.

The only artists I have ever known who are personally delightful, are bad artists. Good artists give everything to their art, and consequently are perfectly uninteresting in themselves.

Never trust a woman who wears mauve, whatever her age may be, or a woman over thirty-five who is fond of pink ribbons. It always means that they have a history.

With an evening-coat and a white tie, anybody, even a stock-broker, can gain a reputation for being civilized!

The worst of having a romance is that it leaves one so unromantic.

[illegible] looks, my acquaintances for their characters, and my enemies for their brains.

What a fuss people make about fidelity! And, after all, it is purely a question for physiology. It has nothing to do with our own will. It is neither an unfortunate accident or an unpleasant result of temperament. Young men want to be faithful, and are not; old men want to be faithless, and can not; that is all one can say.

A cigarette is a perfect type of a perfect pleasure. It is exquisite, and it leaves one unsatisfied. What more can you want?

But the funny side of the matter is the story is appearing in Lippincott's Magazine. This magazine, it will be remembered, published the "Quick or the Dead," a story which immensely increased the magazine's circulation. The immediate consequence of the publication of this story was the "bouncing" of its editor. Miss LIPPINCOTT, a spinster daughter, a stockholder and a prude, declared that she would rather have paid thousands of dollars out of her own pocket than to have had so thoroughly disreputable a story as the "Quick or the Dead" appear in a magazine bearing the family name. The "Quick or the Dead" is as pure as pure can be, it is said, compared to "Dorian Gray." It is presumed, therefore, that the successor to the bounced editor will in his turn have to go. The LIPPINCOTTS, however, to be consistent should discontinue the publication of the story.

FACTS SACRIFICED TO COURTESY

CHAUNCEY DEPEW is said to have remarked to an interviewer "that this was hardly the moment to impress the English people with the blessings of Republicanism, when all the republics from Mexico to Patagonia were in a state of explosion." For as acute a man as DEPEW is credited with being, this is a most surprising statement. The most unobserving and unreflective clodhopper would scarcely be guilty of it. Are the United States in a state of explosion? Is Canada about to fall into fragments? And what about France, not to mention the peaceful revolution in Brazil? The test of republicanism cannot fairly be made to rest on the actions of the factious half-breeds of Central and South America. Mr. DEPEW may have desired to say something complimentary of Royalty and so contrasted the chaos now rife in the South American states with the steadiness of British institutions. His comparison, however, is unfortunate, because it is not borne out by facts. The compliment does credit to DEPEW's amiability, but in the matter of his judgment it would seem to show that he hasn't any worth mentioning.

COMMON RIGHTS.

The New York World, under the title of "Common Rights," thus discusses the labor question re the strike on the New York Central:

Mr. Webb, of the Vanderbilt System, puts forth the old claim of the corporation chief—the right to hire or discharge whom he pleases, to pay what and when he chooses, and generally to "run his own business in his own way."

But have workingmen no rights running parallel with these? Labor is the sole commodity which they have to sell. Have they no voice in saying whom they will work for and with, what wages they shall receive, how many hours they shall toil, what agents they shall choose to represent them?

To deny these rights is to make slaves of workingmen, and this appears to be what some of the more brutal and domineering representatives of combined capital would like to do.

There are rights in common and mutual obligations in this matter which both sides must learn to observe and respect. Self-protection is the first law of nature, and Labor has great necessity for invoking it and as plain a right to do so as capital can justly claim. The worker, too, has a right to a word in the management of his own business.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Admiral of the fleet Sir THOMAS SYMONDS has made a vigorous appeal to the British Prime Minister on the strength and condition of the navy. He complains that, while the British navy is represented as being kept up to the strength of that of any two powers, it really has but seventy-seven battle ships to France and Russia's ninety-three, or Germany and France's eighty-eight. He says England has 501 war vessels to match 585 held by France and Russia, or 579 held by France and Italy, or 556 held by France and Germany. In regard to the size of ships, the Admiral makes it a point, that if speed is to be maintained, length must generally exceed the proportion to breadth hitherto allowed in war ships. Sir THOMAS greatly strengthens his case by apt quotations from history, and, judging from his reception in the British naval papers, he must be held to be to a very large extent the mouth-piece of naval opinion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Respecting the attack of the Colonist on Mr. ERSKINE, that gentleman has to say that while the published report in the TIMES is mainly correct, that which refers to the district schools is misleading. Instituting a comparison between district schools, Mr. ERSKINE'S object was to point out that in some districts the trustees are supplied with funds direct while in others no aids assessments and rates had to be rendered. Mr. ERSKINE, further, is of the opinion that it would have been in better taste had the Colonist verified his remarks before making them the subject of editorial criticism. It is well known that errors will creep into the reports of meetings, and allowance should be made in consequence.

Not only have the leading distillers raised the wholesale price of whiskey ten cents a gallon, but three firms, WALKER & SONS, of Walkerville, GOODERHAM & WORTS, of Toronto, and Mr. CORBY, of Belleville, exact an agreement from their customers that they will not undersell each other, and if the latter break this agreement the distillers will not supply them any longer. What not will the exigencies of trade develop next? The straits to which competition reduces business seems to justify the ukase of the distillers. If business men find it necessary to combine, why should the privilege be denied to labor. It's a poor rule that don't work both ways.

MR. CARLING is an active Immigration Minister. Immediately that the Heligoland transfer was announced Mr. CARLING urged the Imperial Government to send the Heligolanders here. Owing, however, to the fact that Germany protects the islanders adequately, removal is unnecessary. This project has, therefore, fallen through. It is now alleged that the Minister has issued an invitation to the oppressed Russian Jews to find freedom in this country. Perhaps it is fortunate that STANLEY'S dwarfs were happy, or an expedition might have been fitted out to invite them also. In some quarters a Jewish immigration is opposed as unsuitable. Certainly the Jews are not agriculturists; but how useful they will be in a country where borrowing is a necessity.

ANOTHER NUISANCE.

TO THE EDITOR:—A good deal of attention has been drawn to the nuisance on Mr. Dunsmuir's lot on Yates street; the case having been repeatedly adjourned in the City Police Court. A not less disagreeable nuisance well deserves the attention of the sanitary officer. I allude to the accumulation of stagnant water and sewage, upon the lot adjoining the road leading from Humboldt street to Beacon Hill, nearly opposite to the Reformed church.

A brick drain debouches upon the lot in question, and there is also a brick culvert under the road; between the two there is a sluggish and offensive sewer. No doubt the corporation have the power to compel the owner of the lot to construct a proper drain. Every Sunday troops of people pass from Humboldt street to Beacon Hill and they ought not to be annoyed by an avoidable nuisance. ANTI-TYPHOID.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR.—Several families have been disappointed in not obtaining a servant from the contingent lately sent out from England. The committee of the G. F. S. will gladly receive the names of those requiring servants and endeavor to suit them from others shortly to be sent from England. But those so supplied will be expected to stand security for $50 to pay part passage money, the society at home finding the other half. This money will be refunded out of the girl's wages.

A lady, the Hon. Mrs. Joyce, who for many years has taken great interest in emigrating suitable servant girls to the colonies, will shortly visit this town, when arrangements will be made for a regular supply to be sent out to this province.

To further help this cause, it will be absolutely necessary to have an office with rooms for meeting and boarding these servants on arrival. The committee urgently ask funds in aid of this cause, as well as other minor expenses connected with the work. A little help at this juncture will enable the society to make a start in this province and further extend its beneficial work in supplying the colony with suitable servants. A report will be duly given in the public papers. The honorary secretary will duly acknowledge any money or cheques which may be paid into the Bank of British Columbia, to the fund of the Girls' Friendly Society. Thanking the Editor for the use of his columns and the encouragement of the work of the G. F. S. I remain,

C. ELLISON.

THE SCHEME A FAILURE.

Sir Lester Kaye Does not Prove a Success as an Agriculturist.

Large farming enterprises are seldom a success, and the failure of Sir John Lester Kaye to make his Northwest project a paying concern shows how essential a thorough knowledge of agriculture is in order to insure success to those who embark in it. Sir John Kaye induced several English capitalists to join him and invest in large large tracts of lands in the Northwest and start farming on an extensive scale. He was made manager of the company, but instead of adopting frugality and economy in the management of the company's affairs he appears to have devoted himself entirely to having a good time. He rode through the country in an elegantly furnished car and surrounded himself with every luxury which could make life pleasant and agreeable. The scheme has nearly collapsed. Sir John Kaye has resigned his position and Mr. Jasper Richardson has taken charge of the farm, but the prospects of making it a paying concern are not inviting. It is altogether likely the company will have to abandon their proprietory rights in the large tracts of land secured, and dispose of it in smaller areas to settlers. The history of large farms in America shows in nearly every instance that failure and ruin has been the inevitable result. The Bell farm in Manitoba which was started under the most favorable auspices proved a failure and a financial loss. The history of the Dalrymple farm in Dakota is somewhat different from those just mentioned, but its success is attributable to the extreme economy practiced by the firm of Philadelphia Hebrews who controlled it. It is an invidious policy, and hinders in a large degree settlement of a new country, to allow [illegible] of land.

YOU CANNOT ALWAYS TELL.

Newspaper Writing is a Trade, Like Any Other Work.

"What a newspaper man writes is a mighty poor index to what he thinks," says Judge Brisbin to a St. Paul Pioneer Press reporter. "I remember when I was at college a friend of mine wrote a tale of woe entitled "My Mother's Grave" for the college paper. The story had a temperance moral attached, and Charley was so proud of his literary effort that he sent a copy of the thing to a young lady in New Haven (the judge is a Yale man, class '46), and a few evenings afterward we went up to the young lady's home to spend the evening. It was Christmas Eve, and there was a big bowl of egg-nog out in the dining room. Soon after we arrived the young lady took me out quietly and gave me an introduction to the fluid, but cautioned me not to allow my friend to find out that there was anything of the sort in the house, as she did not wish to offend an author of temperance literature. Several times during the evening I made sub rosa pilgrimages to where the holiday beverage was located and every time my friend got within range of my breath, fragrant with nutmeg, spices and Jeffersonian simplicity, he would give me a piteous look with an interrogation point in each eye. He was so mad when he left that it was all that he could do to bid our hostess a civil adieu, and when we reached the street he wanted to throw rocks at the house. It will not do to take it for granted that you newspaper men always believe what you write."

PRINCESS DOLGOROUKI.

She Denies the Statement That She Will Publish Her Memoirs.

A Paris special says: When some months ago the statement was made in a newspaper in London that Princess Dolgorouki, formerly the Morganatic wife of the late Emperor of Russia, had written and was about to publish her memoirs, the story was eagerly snapped up and accepted as gospel truth.

First one and then another of the great London papers came out with similar statements. Then the French papers took up the cue. The news travelled very fast to America, where the memoirs were eagerly awaited, very naturally, for the autobiography of a clever woman would be in itself of great interest, but the personal memoirs of a woman who once held the place nearest to the heart of an Emperor would be still more so. And when the Emperor happened to be the assassinated Czar of Russia and that woman happened to be the celebrated Princess Dolgorouki, it is easy to understand what an interest would be aroused by the announcement that she had prepared her reminiscences of one of the most remarkable periods in the history of Europe during the last 100 years.

A few days ago Prince George Dolgorouki, one of the three brothers of the Princess, returned to Paris from St. Petersburg. He is a tall, manly-looking gentleman, with iron-gray hair and small side whiskers, a pair of smiling dark eyes, charming manners and an irresistible way of putting one at ease immediately. To your correspondent to-day he said: So you want to know the truth about these memoirs of my sister, the Princess. Let me tell you that from the first to the last there is not a single word of truth in the story. Not a word. In fact, I had disbelieved the story from the very first. It was so unlikely that my sister, who has remained on the very best of terms with the present Emperor and his wife and family, should have, at all events during her lifetime, permitted the publication of any reminiscences which could hardly fail to have given pain, or at least have caused annoyance, to her Imperial friends.

A short while since I had occasion to go to Russia, and I saw my sister. I asked as to the truth of the announcement that she had written and was about to publish her memoirs. She assured me in the most solemn manner that there was not a single word of truth in it, that nothing was further from her thoughts or intentions.

Just before leaving St. Petersburg I breakfasted with the Emperor and Empress and my sister, for whom I assure you the Czar and Czarina appear to entertain none but the most amicable feelings.

Now, if the memoirs have been published I would very much like to see them, and still more, I would like to know who wrote them. I am certain they were not written by my sister.

TRYING TO GET MINERS.

Methods Adopted at Seattle to Get Men for the Wellington Collieries.

It is now claimed that the Seattle employment agents are daily displaying advertisements for miners to send to the Wellington mines, assuring them immediate work there. On Wednesday a committee from the Laborers' Protective Union of Seattle waited on the different employment agents there, and attempted to stop proceedings which they claim are fraudulent. They found one of the most prominent agents south of Yesler avenue advertising in great display for "250 miners to send immediately to Wellington; good wages."

The committee claimed that the above was an "utter fake" on the unsuspecting laborers; for, owing to existing conditions, they say it is impossible for union men to get work there, a fact which of course is well known to all the union miners.

Similar advertisements were found at the other bureaus. The committee tried to stop the hiring of men, but only partially succeeded. The members of the Protective Association state that their union will not permit non-union men to go to work in the Wellington mines, and that all fees received by employment agents with that agreement are taken under false pretenses, because the agents are aware of the circumstances.

THE BEAR'S NEST MINE.

The Last Chapter in Its History of a Great Fraud.

Two well-known mining men, Mr. J. B. Hammond, of Chicago, and Mr. J. Calderwood, of Douglas Island, Alaska, go to Alaska this morning on the Elmer. Mr. Hammond is a well-known contractor for mining plants, and has put in a good deal of machinery in the mines of the Black Hills. It will be remembered that when the syndicate of English and German capitalists was formed to buy and operate the famous Bear's Nest mine on Douglas Island Mr. Hammond secured the contract for putting in the contract for the mine for $300,000. The work was well under way when it was discovered that the mine had been salted, and that it was useless to continue the erection of the machinery for the ore would not turn out fifty cents a ton. This was the most notorious case of salting that has ever been known in the history of mining, and it has made the Bear's nest mine a by-word among mining men throughout the world. When it was found that the Bear's Nest ledge was worthless, Mr. Hammond was ordered to stop work on the plant, for which $97,000 was then due him. Then came a fight over the payment of the contractor. The foreign capitalists who had lost so heavily in the enterprise were adverse to paying out more money, and the German component of the syndicate said Mr. Calderwood to a Post-Intelligencer reporter, formed a syndicate to save themselves at Mr. Hammond's expense. But a compromise has finally been reached. Mr. Hammond and Mr. Calderwood are to go to Douglas Island to-day, the property is to be sold, and Mr. Hammond to be allowed one-fourth of his fee on the property. Thus closes the history of one of the biggest mining frauds of this or any other time. Mr. Calderwood said that the Treadwell mine will probably buy part of the plant and the rest of it may go to some of the smelters in the region. He has been in the country some time, and believes that the only mine there that is doing much is the Treadwell. All the rest together are not making out to clear $15,000 a year. It is a curious fact, that the Bear's Nest mine is sending ore to the Treadwell by ocean steamer, and the ledge is exactly similar to the ore formation. The success of the Treadwell mine was a great help in developing the Bear's Nest. Those Canadian experts who reported favorably on the latter were able to assay ore $50 to $80 a ton but that gold is all gone, the mine isn't worth a cent.

Mr. Calderwood is a Scotchman who has had experience in mining in parts of the country. He goes to Alaska as soon as the Bear's Nest matter is settled up. He has seen all kinds of salting from shooting a deer shot into a wall or back of cattle, and shooting "float" or loose rock over the surface, to the more scientific ones of chloride of gold and silver, but the Bear's Nest job he regards as one of the most delicately managed affairs with which he has come in contact.

BLACK DIAMOND NOTE.

A New Paper for Nanaimo—Pay Day at Wellington.

(From the Free Press.)

A report is current that a new paper will be started in Nanaimo to advocate the Dunsmuir Government interest. Colonist number two on a small scale. Come along you will get a warm if not a hearty reception by the citizens of Nanaimo.

Tuesday was "pay day" with the union locked out miners, and the allowance was double that of the first month. Mr. A. Spencer, treasurer of the association, made the payment, and stated to a reporter that assistance was coming from all quarters where there was a labor organization accompanied with kind expressions of sympathy, and promises of further financial aid. The struggle against organized labor being keenly felt by the sister lodges, who are determined that the locked out Wellington miners shall want for money assistance is of any avail. In this matter the Dunsmuirs may find to their sorrow that organized labor has more available capital than they have.

Alex. Dunsmuir, president of the E. & N. railway has refused to carry the Free Press between Nanaimo and Wellington. The Free Press say that their subscription list at Wellington has increased since this action was taken.

Owing to the purchase of the lot on which the Old Bastion stands, it will be necessary to remove it, and with this end in view the Free Press understands Dr. Praeger intends to become the purchaser and if he can obtain a suitable site from Mr. Robins, he will make it a present to the city. There are only a few old pioneers left in Nanaimo who can remember the number of lives that this old relic has been the means of saving, and how they were compelled to remain inside for weeks on certain occasions when the Indians were surrounding the city in the early days. The Old Bastion has quite a history which the pioneers are so well able to relate with heaving breast when they remember what they have endured therein. It would therefore be a pity to demolish it, especially as it proves such an attraction to parties visiting the city, and it is to be hoped it will be removed to a more conspicuous site, and there remain as a curio to the rising generation.

Wm. Rathey, a miner employed at the Southfield mine, had his foot badly crushed by a fall of coal a few days ago.

The present output of the New Vancouver coal company at their different mines is 1600 tons per day, with prospects of it shortly reaching 2000. The company is in a better condition than ever before and their new mine that they are at present sinking will bring the output away up.

A dispatch of the 20th from Halifax, N. S., says:—Yesterday a number of the regular mining corps of the Royal Engineers left here and anchored off McNaab's Island, where Corporal Nichols went down in a diving suit in about 100 feet of water after an anchor, to which a chain was to be attached. After he had been down some time these above noticed that something was wrong, as they could get no signal from him. After six hours the lifeless body of Nichols was taken from the water. Nichols was 100 feet under water, and had attached the rope to a heavy anchor, in order to have it hauled to the surface, when the rope in some way became tangled in his gear. He cut it in order to clear it, and the anchor fell upon and killed him.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

ANOTHER MEETING.

The Sending of Troops to Wellington Condemned at New Westminster.

A public meeting was held at New Westminster on Wednesday evening last, at which Mayor Brown acted as chairman, and Mr. Thos. Turnbull as secretary. On the platform were Mr. J. F. Carbould, M. P. for Westminster District, and Mr. Foster, M. P. P. for Nanaimo. After a brief explanation of the object for which the meeting was called, the chairman introduced the first speaker in the person of Mr. Foster, M. P. P., who said that the city was uninterested in the strike, and therefore it was necessary to say anything about that; but he wished to deny certain statements that he had seen published in the Colombian regarding Nanaimo, which were absolutely false. True, there had been innocent processions gotten up to show the world that the miners' strike was not ended, as has been reported. The processionists had not intimidated any one. When requested to "move on" by a policeman they had quietly obeyed. No one had been arrested, nor had there been any trouble, except the strike. There were over twenty magistrates in and about Nanaimo, who knew the whole circumstances of the case, but they had not been consulted in the matter of bringing in the militia. After an earnest speech, which was received with much applause, the speaker concluded with a hope that the people of that portion of the Mainland would express their disapprobation at the sending of the military to Nanaimo.

Mr. Curtis then read the following resolution:

"Whereas an armed force has been sent to Nanaimo district on pretence that such a force was necessary to the preservation of the public peace; and whereas it appears that no such necessity existed, but on the contrary the utmost good order prevailed in the said district, and whereas it further appears that the said armed force was sent into the said district upon the requisition of three magistrates resident at Victoria who took action on ex parte statements without the knowledge or consent of magistrates resident at Nanaimo; and whereas, as such arbitrary actions are a threat to the liberties of and an insult to the law abiding people;

Therefore be it resolved that we hereby emphatically protest against the injustice done our friends at Nanaimo, and call upon the proper authorities to cause the immediate withdrawal of the said armed force, and further that we hereby assure the people of the said city of our deepest sympathy with them in this their present trial and of our earnest belief that they have done nothing to justify the extreme measures which have been pressed upon them; but on the contrary have borne their treatment with commendable wisdom and temper."

Mr. Curtis said he knew nothing about the strike or the cause thereof but thought it was wrong for the Victoria magistrates to send the militia to Nanaimo, and he, therefore, took much pleasure in presenting the resolution which he hoped would find a seconder.

Mr. J. C. Armstrong seconded the motion and in doing so said that he knew of no more outrageous case in the history of human civilization.

Mr. G. C. Corbould, M.P., was called upon and said he knew nothing whatever of the cause of the strike. The meeting had been assembled to perform a duty in expressing its sympathy for Nanaimo, and also to express its views on the action of the Victoria magistrates in sending the militia to Nanaimo. They certainly had the right to do so, but did they enquire whether or not they were justified in so doing? He was afraid no. He hoped the member for Nanaimo would convey to his people their sympathy with them.

Mr. Thomas Turnbull thought that the whole affair was a very outrageous proceeding and sympathized strongly with Nanaimo.

The resolution was put and carried without anybody saying nay.

AN INFORMAL MUSICALE.

Music on the First Grand Piano Manufactured in the Province.

At the invitation of Messrs. Goodwin & Co., quite a number of prominent people assembled last night at the piano factory, corner Fort and Broad streets, and were entertained by an informal musicale, which was designed to exhibit the qualities of the first grand piano manufactured on the coast north of 'Frisco.

The piano, which by the way will be one of the attractions at the grand benefit concert next Tuesday evening, is the handsomest musical instrument in Victoria, and reflects the greatest credit on its enterprising manufacturers. Its construction was commenced about a year ago, but owing to press of other business it has only just been completed. The instrument is of great power, overstrung, the action especially free from the stiffness generally noticed in new pianos, and the entire absence of the metallic tone so often found in instruments of this kind, was the subject of comment by those who listened to its music under the skilful manipulation of Prof. Sharpe last evening.

The case is of highly polished rosewood, its graceful lines affording a pleasing contrast to the prim-looking upright pianos which adorn most of our drawing-rooms. Its musical qualities are all that could be desired. Prof. Sharpe, after giving it every conceivable test, pronounced it as near perfection in this respect as any instrument he has ever played upon, and the professor knows.

During the evening Messrs. Hermann and Jeffries played a duet on the "Grand," Mr. T. Gore sang a solo, and Master A. Bantley played a violin solo. In the orchestral selection Mr. Rife furnished the cornet accompaniment.

Among those present were Mayor Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Lowen, Major and Mrs. Nicholles, Mr. Harlock, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Hall, Captain Devereaux, Messrs. E. Crow Baker, J. H. Mason, C. Rhodes, J. Partridge, Elworthy, Jay, Leet and many others, who were all sincere in praising the beautiful instrument and in congratulating Mr. Goodwin on his success.

Stationery at Daley's.

An Old Timer.

While excavating at Seattle the other day, the laborers found a twelve-pound cannon ball which was fired from the steamer Decatur, in defense of Seattle against the Indians thirty-five years ago.

Big Boxes.

Two mammoth boxes in front of J. Piercy & Co's warehouse to-day suggested an idea to a reporter that the same could be utilized as dwellings with the necessary doors and windows fixed. Lots of the "comfortable" cottages at Wells, Gray are not much larger than those same dry goods cases.

A Crowd Gathered.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentleman's clothing. They comprise a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. McCallum, 43 Fort street.

Nothing Small About It.

The Port Blakely Mill Co. are getting out a big stick to send to the Columbian Exhibition at Chicago. It will be 150 feet long and fifty-two inches square, and contain 23,800 feet of lumber. Readers abroad will please make a note of the above. The Pacific slope is not a country of small matters in its material products.

16th Century.

Furniture finished in the style of three centuries ago, is the latest fad. Some of the designs in oak are said to be very beautiful. A large consignment of bedroom suites in antique style is now on its way from the east to Hastie & Erskine, and is expected to arrive in a few days. Parties furnishing will do well to wait and see these latest designs in ornamental, as well as useful and durable furniture.

For the South.

The steamer City of Puebla which sailed for San Francisco this morning carried the following passengers from Victoria: R. B. Kerchoff and wife, W. D. Creighton, W. B. Griffith, Miss Gilmore, Mrs. D. G. McCandless, and child N. A. Greenley, C. Geisler, Miss Moffatt, Mrs. E. Savannah, Miss S. Savannah, Mrs. Carleton, H. E. Allen, J. S. Hittel, Mrs. Walkem and Mrs. E. E. Small.

Hon. Mr. Humphrey.

The illness of Hon Mr. Humphrey has lately assumed a serious phase, and his medical adviser and relatives begin to fear the worst. Mr. Humphrey has been very ill for over a year, and months ago he visited California in hopes that a change of air would be beneficial. Since his return he has gradually grown weaker and his many friends will deeply regret to hear that the gravest apprehensions are now entertained.

Not on Strike.

For the last few days some of the boiler makers of the Albion Iron Works have been seen hanging around the corners and consequently some knownothing had to start the report that they were out on strike. The TIMES is glad to say that this is not the case however, but the men are only laying off for a few days until repairs are made to the tar tank, which was burned the other day, and a lot of pipes already made can be got out of the way.

Mainlanders at Work.

A meeting was called at Vancouver on Wednesday evening to discuss University matters. The assemblage was addressed at length by several prominent gentlemen and the following resolution was carried unanimously: "That this meeting, called in the interests of the Mainland, expresses its hearty approval of the action of the Government in inaugurating a Provincial University and pledges an earnest support in its development. Second—That it is the opinion of this meeting that all the interests involved will be best served by placing the University buildings on the Mainland. Third—That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Government.

The "Chinese Patrol" Boat.

The efforts of U. S. Senator Squire to secure an appropriation of $12,000 for the construction of a steam vessel to patrol the waters of the Sound for a stricter maintenance of the Chinese restriction act are most advisable.

There have been hundreds of the countraband heathen smuggled onto American soil despite the utmost vigilance of the customs authorities. The obstacles opposing a rigid exclusion of the Chinese into the state are many. The long coast line, the innumerable islands and sheltered nooks of the Sound, afford every facility for safety and invite violation of the law. Add to this fact the known inadequacy of officers, the slow sailing boats, and the great wonder is that there are not ten of the undesirable class smuggled in, where there is now out one.

Senator Squire's amendment to the department for this steam patrol should become law.

The China Steamer.

The steamship Parthia, which arrived at Vancouver from China and Japan at 9:55 p. m. on Wednesday night, made the voyage from Yokohama in 13 days, 23 hours and 44 minutes. She brought 1500 tons of freight chiefly tea and silk; 900 of which is overland, 200 for 'Frisco and the balance for the rest of the coast. She had 23 bags of mail for London, Glasgow, Dubuin and other points. The following was her list of passengers: Saloon—Mr. Gilroy, Mr. McLean, Rev. and Mrs. Steven, Miss Stewart, Mrs M. Walker, Mr. Hill, Dr. Salter, Mr. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Schenck and child, Rev. Wigan and Rev. Sullivan for San Francisco; Mr. J. Gittens, Mr A. Campbell for Liverpool, Eng.; Mr. J. A Hawes, Mr. E. R. G. Barnes, Mr. J. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clark, Mr. H. N. MacGregor, Mrs. F. W. Styan, Mr. J. A. Singleton, Lieut Colomb, R. A.; McCoward, for London, Eng.; Miss C. M. Cushman, Dr. A. F. Howe, Messrs. F. and A. F. Hardy, for Boston, United States; Rev. A. Lloyd, Miss Lloyd and party, for Toronto, Canada; Rev. W. J. White, Mrs. White three children and Amah, Mr. J. McPherson, for New York; Mr. T. Vitsansaak, Mr. T. Truno, Mr. A. M. McLaren, jr., Mr. Kato, for Vancouver and beyond.

FROM THE NORTH.

The C.P.N. Co.'s Steamer Maude Arrives From the Wreck of the Sardonyx.

The steamer Maude, Capt. Brown, arrived from the wreck of the Sardonyx last night. The Maude has been away for one month, with a crew of wreckers on board, with Capt. John Irving, manager of the company, in charge. A good deal of the wreck was saved, the cylinders, connecting rods, eccentric gear, and pipes of the engine being taken out, as well as the windlass and deck winches, and much other valuable gear. There is no hope of raising the hull, which is too badly damaged.

Although the work of wrecking is rough, no accidents occurred to anyone on the Maude, and all hands are well. She brought down a lot of oil from Skidegate.

THE CABLE COMPLETE.

Once More A Telegraph Wire Between Port Townsend and Victoria.

About nine o'clock this morning the telegraph instrument in the local office, connected with the Straits cable, began to click for the first time for nearly a year. The practised ear of Mr. Archibald soon read from the sounder that Supt. Wilson, of the C. P. R. telegraph, was at Dungeness, and this was the first message to come across the Straits for some months, and showed that Mr. Wilson had completed the repairs to the cable, which has for so long been broken.

Later on communication was had with Port Townsend, and, although not quite ready for business yet, in a few days everything will be put in order, and work will go on. The fact that a second cable now connects Victoria with the outside world will be duly appreciated by the business men here, as it will cheapen the cost of telegraphing to points on the Sound by about fifty per cent.

MR. LIEBE'S OPINION.

What He Doesn't Know About Sealing---Insults Victorians.

Mr. H. Liebes of the North American Commercial Co., makes a statement to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter, in which he says that the seals in Behring Sea are nearly all exterminated, and predicts unless a close season is observed the extinction of the fur bearers.

If Mr. Liebes' remarks were not so manifestly made in the interests of his own company more weight would be given them. He also departs from the truth when he says that for every seal killed, five escape, wounded, to die and sink. This is known to be false by every seal hunter, for not six per cent. of the seals fired on by the hunters get away.

Mr. Liebes also says that in the city of London, Eng., 10,000 people make a living dressing seal skins, and if the seal is exterminated, those artisans must suffer. He says that the attitude of England in maintaining that Behring Sea is an open sea is "only helping a few miserable sailors of Victoria." This latter expression is an uncalled for insult to some of the best people of this city, but is on a par with most of the arguments put forward by monopolists who, not content with the earth, want the sea and all that is in it.

HAD NO WARRANT.

Percival, the Commercial Traveler, on His Way to America.

Some time ago a commercial traveler named Percival came to Victoria and commenced to solicit orders. Mr. Bull the tax collector objected to this, and said Mr. Percival must pay the regular license, which the latter gentleman refused to do. A summons was accordingly issued, but Mr. Percival ignored it, and a warrant was made out, but the commercial man could not be found until to-day, when officer Levin spied him boarding the City of Puebla but what was the use, the officer did not have the warrant to show, and Mr. Percival would not go along unless it was produced. The convenient telephone was then brought into use and Chief Sheppard communicated with, who immediately dispatched an officer with the terrible piece of blue paper. The officer and paper caught a car and getting off at the terminus made a strong run for the wharf, followed by the eyes of every one, all of whom expected that some murderer was getting out of the country. But it made no difference as the fastest horse in the world could not have got there in time, as the steamer had already made a wide berth between herself and the wharf and was steaming off for San Francisco with the smiling countenance of the commercial traveler looking over the railing and bidding farewell to a town that had brought so much trouble on his shoulders. Perhaps it is as well that he did get away, for he told the police officer who at first saw him that he never got a summons and therefore, if arrested, he intended to "slush" the city for a few thousands. But of course that would have been decided "if" he had not taken his departure.

Yachting Club.

The yachting men of Vancouver are about to organize a club, and for that purpose held a meeting in Rand Bros.' office this week. A committee, composed of Messrs. Watts, Geddes, Sansom, Thynne and Robinson, was appointed to enter into correspondence with clubs in the east and get copies of rules and regulations for the government of such an association. Why cannot Victoria do likewise?

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

New Clothes.

The specifications for the winter clothing and boots for the police have been issued. They call for a good article, and when rigged out in the new togs the officers will be able to defy the rigors of winter, even if it be as severe as those of the east.

Lost Again.

Mrs. Rosson of Yates street reported to the police that her little girl was again missing, but a diligent search failed to find the stray one. This is not the first time that the child has strayed away and she seems to have an everlasting desire to run away from home. She will more than likely turn up all right when she is hungry.

Chinese Immigrants.

By the steamer Islander last night thirty-two Chinese arrived, ex steamer Parthia from Hong Kong. Quite an influx of these yellow immigrants has taken place lately, and more are to come. As a matter of fact, though, the Chinese population here does not increase much, as a great many find their way into the broad domains of Uncle Sam, just across the Straits.

Magnificent Fittings.

Probably some of the finest interior fittings in the city have just been completed by John Weiler in the Brown Jug saloon. The bar and screens, and all other furniture is of the best, plate glass mirrors and tasty decorations to set off the whole being lavishly supplied. The whole building has undergone a complete renovation, and is certainly one of the richest retreats in the city.

Johnson Street Sewer.

A large number of connections are being made with the Johnson street sewer as it is to be hoped that the city will soon be rid of the stench that arises from the ravine that runs down between Pandora and Johnson streets. The next thing for the sanitary committee to see to in connection with the Johnson street sewer is the outlet from which a terrible smell arises at low tide which might be done away with by adding a few lengths of pipe.

Cannot be Surpassed

Mr. Jno. T. Pierre, merchant tailor, has received his first shipment of fall and winter goods, comprising elegant English and American coatings, suitings and trousering. On inspection they will be welcomed by lovers of choice cloth as they far surpass any previous importation of woolens into British Columbia, and as Mr. Pierre employs none but the best workmen, his customers may depend on having their garments cut and made in a satisfactory manner.

Beautiful Birds.

Among the many pretty birds that inhabit the different countries perhaps none beat the Japanese pheasants for size and beauty. A pair of these beautiful birds were brought across the Pacific on the steamer Parthia by a gentleman for Mr. D. E. Campbell, of this city, and the latter gentleman has them on view at his store corner of Douglas and Fort streets. The cock is a light silver color with jet black stripes through and around each feather. The birds look a little rough after their long voyage, but are well worth seeing.

The Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. G. A. McTavish, nurseryman, has kindly consented to receive all exhibits in fruit, vegetables and farm produce, for the exhibitions at Toronto and St. John, N. B. Those having specimens should send them in at once in order that they may be shipped east by September 1st. Victoria and district being specially adapted for horticulture should send a very large and creditable exhibit. The representative in the city at present is meeting with gratifying success, and has been promised numerous exhibits in manufactures, mineral specimens, curios, and other characteristic products of the province. No time should be lost in making the exhibition worthy of the capabilities of the province.

A Good Place For It.

It is very likely that the fire wardens will next year recommend the purchase of a Holloway chemical fire engine, as such an adjunct to the fire department is needed beyond a doubt. Chemical fire extinguishers are recognized by underwriters and experts as the best arrangements to deal with small fires. Considering that the purchase of such an engine is advisable, and will probably be made sooner or later, it would be a good idea for the gentlemen in charge of civic matters to secure that vacant space between the police cells yard and the city hall proper. With a very little expense it could be made a splendid place for a chemical engine, and as the vacant ground belongs to the city it would be a good idea to secure it for this purpose.

A Quiet Day.

A lot of time was spent at the police court this morning without anything of importance coming outside of the case of L. Marbeuf, charged with allowing his chimney to catch fire. Mr. Mills, who appeared for the defense, admitted that the chimney was on fire, but pleaded that the by-law did not cover the case, and in support of his argument quoted Webster's definition of the word "permit" which appears in the by-laws. His honor, however, fined Mr. Marbeuf $25. H. M. Grindley was charged by Sanitary Officer Bailey with allowing a nuisance to remain on his premises and was remanded for one week.

The occupiers of the house on View street were also fined $5 for allowing their chimney to catch fire.

A Good Deal in a Name.

A Langley correspondent of the World a Government, organ proposes "to change the name of the Mainland Political Association to that of the British Columbia Political Association, for the purpose of "helping the Government by its support" etc. Our esteemed Vancouver contemporary will "put its foot in it" if it penneth that suggestion to be acted upon. The British Columbia Association is already in existence and is composed of thousands of members and adherents who will "help the Government" only to its defeat. The Langley correspondent must have a sinister design upon the Government when he suggests such a thing.

Sport at Cameron Lake.

The Alberni mail carrier arrived at Nanaimo last evening from his trip across the mountains, says the Free Press, and reports meeting with Mr. Peck's party at Cameron Lake. The party have two teams with them, and report the journey to the lake was accomplished under the most trying difficulties. The road is in the worst of conditions and in several places they were compelled to take the wheels off the wagons in order to get over the trees which are lying across the road. One of the teams got stuck on a hill, and then backed down over a bridge, which fortunately was not very high. One gentleman from Victoria, who is among the party, got badly hurt, but under the skillful treatment of Dr. Davis, who forms one of the party, he is favorably improving, but is still confined to the camp. Mr. Peck shot three bears, while the rest of the gentlemen are said to have done good angling, and also bagged a large number of birds. Any party visiting Cameron Lake at the present time may be sure of being able to obtain a tip-top cock tail from the skillful hands of that veteran hotel keeper—Mr. T. E. Peck. The party claim the have done very well and are spending a good time. Messrs W. J. Goepel and W. Shears of Victoria are among the party.

The steamer Badger towed a scow load of lumber into Esquimalt this morning for the new naval hospital additions and a new bridge. The lumber is for Lee & Leigh, from H. R. Morse, of Vancouver. A considerable quantity of it is to be brought down before the contract is completed.

At Wellington.

The Free Press mentions a report that 900 Scotch miners had been sent for to work in the Wellington mines, but the report is not credited.

Careful observers state that the military at Wellington is by daily degrees getting smaller and beautifully less in numbers. The "last man" will be glad when he gets his marching orders for "Victoria, barracks, and beauty."

Death's Hand.

Mrs. Hannah Wonacott, a native of Angelsea, Wales, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. C. Marston, Chatham street, last night after a lingering illness, caused by a cancer. The deceased came to Victoria in 1858 and has been a resident of the city ever since. She leaves five children, Anthony and Albert Elliott, Mrs. Charles Marston, Mrs. A. Wall and a younger boy to mourn the loss of a kind mother.

A Father-in-Law.

It is generally the rule that the mother-in-law is the relative mostly dreaded by a young aspirant, but Nanaimo as is generally the case there, has found fit to differ with the rest of the universe, as a case published in the Free Press will prove. It appears that the father-in-law was the terror in this case and his son-in-law and daughter were the victims of a scare caused by the aforesaid father-in-law firing a pistol through the window of the young couples' residence.

Englishman's River.

Most of the settlers have finished harvesting. The grain crop is above the average.

Work will be commenced on Beaver creek wharf this week. It will prove a great benefit to the majority of the settlers who have in the past experienced great inconvenience and uncertainty in meeting the steamboat in small boats.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCarter were grieved to learn of the sudden death of their son Ernest on Friday last.

A road party is engaged constructing roads to the wharf.

Settled Out of Court.

H. G. Vandalin, who was up in the police court yesterday charged with obtaining money under false pretences is again a free man, his victim having settled with him out of court. To prosecute Vandalin it would have cost five times $25, the amount obtained, as a man would have to be got from the Tacoma Bank to swear that Vandalin had no funds. It is more than likely, however, that his parents have again come to his rescue. The man is by no means a green hand, as a prominent hotel keeper of this city was also taken in by him for board and lodgings, but at the hotel he gave the name of Swift.

Victoria Trades Assembly.

Matters pertaining to the strike at Wellington will take up considerable of the time of the Trades Assembly meeting to-night. It is proposed to endorse the strike and place the whole affair before the different labor councils of the Dominion in such a light as to make it an easy matter to raise funds should the strikers, or rather the lockedout miners, be forced to remain out all winter. It will be seen from this that organized labor is determined to fight the matter out to the bitter end. The matter of holding a provincial convention will also come up for discussion. The object of this convention is to take up the eight hour question, and recommend means of carrying it to a successful issue with the least possible amount of confusion. Employers of labor will probably be given three months in which to consider the matter so as to base their calculations in taking contracts in from the stand point of eight hours a day. Organized laboring men claim that the eight hours a day will take the place of the present nine hours with little trouble to both employers and employees, and that no person but the parties directly interested will ever know how it happened. Other matters of minor importance will occupy the rest of the assembly's time to-night.
